Ensuring perfect consistency

After brushing up your slides we recommend to do final check in presentation mode to double check on your alignements and consistency of elements in the individual slides and throughout the whole presentation.

Light Brush Up

involves fitting content to slide frame, fixing colours to client's colour palette, putting text inside template placeholders, and fixing fonts and font sizes.

It is a simplified Brush-Up.

Example of INPUT and OUTPUT of Light Brush-up task

Input

Example slide

The input slide features a dark grey vertical bar on the left with the text 'Lorem ipsum'. To its right are three white rectangular boxes with rounded corners, each containing the text 'Lorem ipsum' followed by a line of placeholder text. A light green rectangular area is positioned to the right of these boxes, containing italicized placeholder text. At the bottom, a green horizontal bar contains another line of placeholder text. The slide number '29' is in the bottom right corner.

29

Output

Example slide

The output slide maintains the same layout as the input slide but with color changes: the vertical bar is now dark blue, the boxes are white, the right-side area is light pink, and the bottom bar is red. The italicized text in the right-side area is now in a serif font. The slide number '28' is in the bottom right corner.

We do not change the style of the boxes from the input, so we don't make the slides guidelines/inspiration compliant unless requested involves improving the structure and/or addition of new graphic elements.

Visual enhancement

Main mistakes in Visual enhancement

Over-usage of icons, icons not fitting the meaning of the content, icons in wrong position,...
Thinking adding only icons updates from Brush up to Visual enhancement

Over-usage of additional lines, shapes

Making structure more complex and harder to understand

Slide remains almost the same as input - inability to interpret the meaning of the slide, ending up getting stuck to the original structure

Choosing of unsuitable structures

Not supporting the message of the slide, losing the content or message from input slide

Enhancement not suitable for clients style (Example: using too boxy style for client with no filled boxes style, using organic shapes for client with boxy/edgy style)

Key to great visual enhancement slides

*Read and understand what client wants to convey in the slide before you begin designing

Recreation

involves converting the input to editable PowerPoint text and shapes

Different types of recreation

Picture recreation

Hand written notes or drawing

Other: PDF (consisting of pictures instead of copy-able text), Post-it/stickers photo recreation from clients' workshops and any similar recreation task

As a standard Recreation contains Brush-up. Sometimes clients ask for Recreation + Visual enhancement. Therefore, always confirm with your admin if recreation should be only brushed up or also enhanced.

Important rules of recreation

Recreate text carefully and double check your recreated text for any typos

You need to write all the letters you can read, in case you can't read the whole word

You need to add the red text and brackets for words your are unsure of

Example: Unsure of word:  <Lor-m ipsum>

Example: Unable to read the word at all **<----->

You need to set up the right language for the content and you can as well use the Internet/Google translator to help you correct or identify some words

Not standard

Not standard tasks usually contain some of the following examples:

PowerPoint Template creation, work in Slide Master

Creating brochure, poster or other not standard formats.
All of these tasks are still produced in PowerPoint

Creating icons, illustrations or other graphical elements that might require additional software than PowerPoint (such as Photoshop, Illustrator or similar)

Not standard tasks are not very frequent at the platform and create only small part from overall tasks volume received by our clients

Any requirement for special software or skills is always described in the task description and designers must consider well if they have the proper skillset/software to successfully work on specific task

Main takeaway

In all tasks you need to carefully follow task description, client's instructions, guidelines and your admin's guidance.

Thank you!
